SPECIALIZATION MORAVIAN COLLEGE

The combination of Moravian's state-of-the-art facilities and programs in athletic training (AT), occupational education, and experiential learning provides students with the best of both worlds. A Bachelor of Science in Athletic Training is available through the Department of Health, Behavior, and Society. The program is designed to prepare students for careers in athletic training, physical therapy, and related fields. The program includes coursework in anatomy, physiology, kinesiology, and exercise science, as well as hands-on experience through internships and clinical rotations. The program is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of Athletic Training Education (CAATE).
